The New York Times Crossword Puzzles 2015 Day-to-Day Calendar: Edited By Will Shortz

Synopsis

Since its debut on February 15, 1942, The New York Times has been presenting its readers with the ultimate in crossword puzzles and has established itself as an icon of American culture and leisure. Puzzle clues are delectably clever as well as challenging. Solving them can be joyful, maddening, and always broadening. Times crossword aficionados know that the Monday puzzle is the most readily solved, relatively speaking. But don't let it fool you. As the week goes on, the puzzles grow more difficult--and the satisfaction in discovering the mystery behind each clue grows greater, too. Every puzzle overflows with surprises, learning opportunities, and just plain fun.

Oops! By the second week of June, the puzzles were no longer in sync with the days of the week. The Saturday calendar puzzle was a Monday crossword from the past, the Monday was a Tuesday, etc. Not a big deal, but unexpected. When I can get through a puzzle supposedly from a former Saturday Times in less than ten minutes (instead of the usual hour or so), there's definitely something off. Do better in 2016, Editors!

The best thing I can say is that it is the NYT crosswords. I have bought this calendar several years running, and they are the best. As anyone knows who has done them they start out easy on Monday and are killers by the weekend. My only complaint is that by Friday and Saturday editor Will Shortz lets loose the crazies whose clues and definitions are unfair to my average brain, but I always go back for more. (-8

Have bought this calendar for a friend of mine for years. He loves it. For people interested in crossword puzzles it's great.

Lots of crossword puzzles. They are a little difficult but good for your crossword loving significant other. They pose a good challenge.

I became hooked on Page-A-Day crossword puzzles years ago. I buy one for myself every year and it is the gift that keeps on "gifting" daily for anyone who is a crossword puzzle lover!

New York Times Crosswords are the BEST! If you have a yen for good crossword puzzles, this will delight you!

love doing crosswords especially the NY times. THIS is perfect for a daily dose of mind games.

My only regret is that these calendars of puzzles are single use!
