Martyrs Of El Salvador/ Their Tapes And Letters

Synopsis

In December 1980 four female Catholic missionaries were murdered in El Salvador. The news stories of the day described them as churchwomen. This seems inadequate. They were American girls of the 50s and 60s. They had done the twist and listened to the Beatles. Dorothy Kazel was an Ursuline nun. Ita Ford and Maura Clarke were Maryknoll Sisters. Jean Donovan was a lay missionary. They were part of the grand fabric of American life. They were similar in many ways, yet they were as singular as the stars in the night. At times they wondered if they were doing enough. This is their story.
