The posters are beautiful and clear. My only negative comment is: they have right on them the family of instruments they belong in, but they categorize the harp as a percussion instrument. I can live with them calling the piano and organ percussion, but not sure how the harp isn't a string instrument. They also include the conductor. Really nice. I would still recommend them.

Well, the harp (String family)' and the organ,(family) are both under the percussion family in this one. If you need pics of the instruments,all well and good. If you're looking for accuracy,look elsewhere. This is what happens when advertisers get involved in music education.

I use the little posters all the time with my K-5 general music students. I always keep this packet nearby. I would highly recommend this for any general music teacher, especially those who teach at the elementary level.

I have had the 'Discover the Composers' series for years. This is done in like manner. Very useful for teaching.

Absolutely perfect for my musical expressions class! Were learning to recognize and appreciate each instrument withing a symphony orchestra and these full color, laminated posters are invaluable! Nice bright, and clear pictures!
